The global Drone Rental Service market size is predicted to grow from US$ 254 million in 2025 to US$ 476 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 8.9% from 2026 to 2032.

Drone Rental Service refers to a service provider offering individuals, businesses, and government agencies the right to use a drone, along with its payload (camera/LiDAR/multispectral/thermal imaging), pilot/training, insurance, data processing, and maintenance, all within a specified rental period. Fees are calculated on an hourly/daily/weekly/monthly basis. This service replaces the one-time purchase of high-value professional drones by clients, providing a light-asset service model that meets short-term, project-based, seasonal, or trial needs.

The global drone leasing service industry is experiencing continuous growth. With the liberalization of low-altitude airspace and the increasing demand for digital inspection and spatial data collection across various industries, market demand is steadily increasing. Compared to direct procurement, drone leasing effectively reduces upfront investment, equipment maintenance, and technological iteration risks for enterprises, aligning with the trend of asset-light operations. Therefore, its penetration rate in industrial scenarios is continuously improving. The industry is transitioning from single equipment leasing to an integrated service model, gradually integrating value-added services such as pilot outsourcing, airspace application, operational insurance, and post-operation data processing and equipment maintenance. Downstream application demands are becoming increasingly diversified, covering multiple fields such as infrastructure inspection, geographic surveying, modern agriculture, public emergency response, film and media, and energy operation and maintenance, with customized leasing solutions for vertical scenarios becoming increasingly abundant.

Simultaneously, the accelerated iteration of intelligent technologies and the continuous updating of new industrial drones are prompting enterprises to prefer short-term leasing of the latest equipment to avoid the risks of asset idleness and technological obsolescence. The industry's compliance system is continuously improving, with flight control standards, operator qualifications, and insurance systems gradually becoming standardized, further ensuring the large-scale and standardized development of leasing services, resulting in strong long-term growth certainty for the overall industry.
