The global Employee Biometric Screening market size is predicted to grow from US$ 744 million in 2025 to US$ 1062 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 5.2% from 2026 to 2032.

To address the high risks of employee identity theft, the cumbersome traditional attendance and health screening processes, and the difficulty in accurately matching personnel information, employee biometric screening services have emerged. Since the widespread application of biometric technology in enterprise management in the 2010s, the human resources and security management sectors have seen significant development. Currently, employee biometric screening services have evolved into a comprehensive service encompassing fingerprint verification, facial recognition, and iris scanning attendance, widely used in enterprise access control, large-scale event security, and routine health monitoring. These services significantly improve personnel verification efficiency and organizational security.

The employee biometric screening market is currently undergoing a critical transformation from 'intelligentization' to 'cloudification' to 'service-oriented.' Driven by policy, technology, and demand, companies need to focus on differentiated functions (such as multimodal fusion and professional services), cultivate vertical scenarios (such as enterprise security and government verification), and build an ecological cooperation network to cope with homogeneous competition and technological iteration challenges, and achieve sustainable development.
