Abstracts

The global ESG Service market size is predicted to grow from US$ 1269 million in 2025 to US$ 1911 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 6.0% from 2026 to 2032.

To address issues such as unclear sustainable development strategic planning, non-standard disclosure of non-financial information, difficulties in assessing social responsibility fulfillment, and insufficient information for ESG investment decisions, ESG (Environmental, Social, and Governance) services have emerged. With the signing of the Paris Agreement in the early 21st century, the advancement of the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), and the rise of the global responsible investment concept, corporate assessment and sustainable management have entered a new stage of systematization and standardization. Currently, ESG services have developed into a professional service system encompassing the development of information disclosure frameworks, ESG rating and verification, carbon neutrality pathway planning, supply chain responsibility auditing, regulatory compliance consulting, and the design of green financial instruments. Widely used by listed companies, financial institutions, multinational corporations, and the public sector, these services systematically help companies identify and manage sustainable development risks, enhance long-term value and reputation, and assist investors and stakeholders in making more responsible value judgments and decisions.

ESG services, acting as a hub connecting economic and social value, are reshaping the paradigm of corporate sustainable development through a three-axis approach: standard building, technological innovation, and ecosystem collaboration. In the future, it is necessary to overcome core bottlenecks such as data quality and methodological unification, and build a four-party governance system involving government, enterprises, financial institutions, and social organizations to upgrade ESG services from a 'compliance tool' to a 'strategic engine.' Under the framework of 'dual carbon' goals and global climate governance, ESG services will deeply integrate with digitalization, greening, and internationalization trends, ultimately becoming a core infrastructure driving the green transformation of the global economy, achieving a fundamental leap from a 'cost center' to a 'value center.'
