An exit sign box is a protective enclosure or housing designed to hold and secure an exit sign, which indicates the nearest exit in case of an emergency. These boxes are typically made of durable materials such as metal or plastic and are mounted above doorways or in hallways to ensure that exit signs are visible and protected. The boxes often include features like weatherproofing, tamper-proof locks, and battery backups for emergency lighting, ensuring the exit signs remain illuminated and visible even in power outages. Exit sign boxes are a critical component in emergency preparedness and building safety.
