Abstracts

The global Freeze Dried Candy market size is predicted to grow from US$ 720 million in 2025 to US$ 1275 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 8.7% from 2026 to 2032.

Freeze-dried candy is a candy that has been processed through freeze-drying technology (freeze-drying technology). It is a dehydrated candy product obtained by freezing materials containing a certain amount of sugar (such as fruit pulp, juice, sugar solution, etc.) to turn the water in the materials into solid ice, and then directly converting the ice into water vapor through sublimation in a vacuum environment. This technology can retain the nutrients, flavor and original shape of the candy raw materials to a large extent. Freeze-dried candies have a loose and porous structure due to sublimation drying, which makes the candies crispy. When you bite the candies, you can feel the obvious lightness and crispness, which is a unique taste different from traditional candies.

Consumers are paying more and more attention to the health attributes of food. Freeze-dried candies, which use low-temperature freeze-drying technology, retain nutrients well and meet the needs of healthy snacks. The retention rate of vitamins and minerals in freeze-dried fruit candies is high. Compared with traditional candies, consumers think they are healthier and are more willing to buy them for their families and themselves. Globally, the market growth rate has remained at around 8% over the past five years. In some developed countries, such as the United States and European countries, the freeze-dried candy market is relatively mature, with a large market size and stable growth. The market size of freeze-dried candy in the United States reached approximately US$250 million in 2023 and is expected to exceed US$350 million by 2028. In developing countries, especially emerging markets in Asia, the freeze-dried candy market is in a rapid growth stage. As one of the world's largest food consumption markets, China's freeze-dried candy market is growing rapidly. In 2023, the market size of freeze-dried candy in China is about RMB 120 million, a year-on-year increase of more than 20%. With the upgrading of consumption and the improvement of consumers' awareness of freeze-drying technology, the market is expected to maintain rapid growth in the next few years.

LP Information, Inc.
