The global Fruit Juice Gummies market size is predicted to grow from US$ 1859 million in 2025 to US$ 2389 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 3.7% from 2026 to 2032.

Fruit juice gummies are soft, gel-like candies made primarily from fruit juice, concentrated fruit juice, or fruit juice powder, combined with sugars, gelling agents, acidulants, flavorings, and colorings. These products typically have a soft, chewy texture, rich fruit flavors, and vibrant colors.

The upstream of the industry chain mainly includes fruit juice and concentrated fruit juice suppliers, sugar raw material suppliers (such as white sugar, glucose syrup, and malt syrup), gelling agent suppliers (such as pectin, gelatin, carrageenan, and agar), food additive suppliers (acidulants, flavorings, natural colorings, preservatives, and nutritional fortifiers), and packaging material suppliers. The midstream consists of fruit juice gummies manufacturers who produce various fruit juice gummies through processes such as ingredient mixing, boiling, concentration, blending, casting, cooling, demolding, and packaging, and continuously develop low-sugar, sugar-free, high-fruit-content, and functional new products. Downstream markets encompass supermarkets, convenience stores, snack chains, e-commerce platforms, cross-border e-commerce, and vending machines, ultimately targeting children, teenagers, and adults. These products are widely used in the casual snack, children's candy, health supplement, and gift markets.

In 2025, global sales of fruit gummies reached 89,200 tons, with a production capacity of approximately 127,400 tons. The average selling price was US$21.3 per kilogram, and the average gross profit margin was 25%-35%.

Fruit juice gummies primarily target children, teenagers, and young consumers, with family consumption and casual snacking accounting for the majority of the market share. North America and Europe are currently the largest consumer markets, where consumers are increasingly focused on natural fruit juice ingredients, low-sugar formulas, and clean-label products. The Asia-Pacific region is the fastest-growing area, benefiting from the expansion of the middle class, the upgrading of snack consumption, and the rapid development of e-commerce channels. Future demand growth will mainly come from products with high fruit juice content, natural and organic products, low-sugar and sugar-free products, and innovative fruit juice gummies with nutritional supplement functions.

Product technology is upgrading from traditional high-sugar flavored gummies towards natural, healthy, and functional ingredients. In terms of raw materials, the proportion of real fruit juice, concentrated fruit juice, and natural plant extracts is continuously increasing; gelling systems are gradually extending from single gelatin to plant-based solutions such as pectin and carrageenan to meet the needs of veganism and halal certification. In terms of production processes, low-temperature cooking, vacuum concentration, precision pouring, and automated packaging technologies are becoming increasingly widespread to improve product stability and the retention of fruit juice flavor. Meanwhile, sugar reduction technology, natural sweeteners, and nutritionally fortified formulas are becoming key research and development areas.
