Furanone Acetate is an organic compound whose molecular structure contains a furan ring and an acetic acid group. It is a colorless to pale yellow liquid with a rich, sweet fruity and caramel aroma. It is slightly soluble in water and readily soluble in organic solvents such as ethanol. Due to its distinctive aromatic odor, furanone acetate is primarily used as an important raw material for food flavorings and fragrances, especially in the formulation of fruit flavorings.

The upstream raw materials for Furanone Acetate mainly include furfural, acetone, acetyl, and various acid-base catalysts. Its downstream applications are highly concentrated in the food industry. Its strong caramel and creamy strawberry aroma makes it an indispensable key flavoring ingredient in the beverage, baked goods, confectionery, and dairy industries, used to enhance and improve the milky and fruity flavor experience of products.

United States market for Furanone Acetate is estimated to increase from US$ million in 2025 to US$ million by 2032, at a CAGR of % from 2026 through 2032.

China market for Furanone Acetate is estimated to increase from US$ million in 2025 to US$ million by 2032, at a CAGR of % from 2026 through 2032.
