The global Galfan Steel market size is predicted to grow from US$ 957 million in 2025 to US$ 1318 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 4.8% from 2026 to 2032.

Galfan steel is a type of steel coated with a zinc-aluminum alloy (approximately 95% zinc and 5% aluminum), known for its enhanced corrosion resistance compared to traditional galvanized steel. This material is used in various industries like construction, automotive, and appliances due to its longevity and durability in harsh environments. Usually a license is required to run this product called Galfan?. It is more economical than straight zinc as the coating mass can be reduced to obtain the same performance characteristics.

The current market for Galfan steel is relatively niche compared to other coated steel products, such as Galvalume and galvanized steel. However, due to its superior corrosion resistance and cost-effectiveness, Galfan steel is gaining attention in industries like construction, automotive, and appliances, especially in applications where long-term durability in harsh environments is crucial. The future development of the Galfan steel market is expected to grow as industries seek more sustainable and cost-efficient materials. With growing awareness of its benefits, production capacities are likely to expand, and more manufacturers may adopt the licensed technology to meet increasing demand.
