The global GBR & GTR Barrier Membranes market size is predicted to grow from US$ million in 2025 to US$ million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of % from 2026 to 2032.

Guided Bone Regeneration (GBR) and Guided Tissue Regeneration (GTR) barrier membranes are specialized materials used in dental and orthopedic procedures to facilitate the regeneration of bone and soft tissues. These membranes act as physical barriers that prevent the infiltration of surrounding soft tissues into the bone defect area, thereby allowing space for the desired bone or tissue to regenerate. GBR is primarily used in dental implantology and oral surgery to promote the growth of new bone around implants or in areas of bone loss. GTR, on the other hand, is often used in periodontal therapy to encourage the regrowth of periodontal tissues, including the bone, cementum, and periodontal ligament, around teeth affected by periodontal disease. These barrier membranes can be made from various materials, including resorbable polymers such as collagen and non-resorbable materials like expanded polytetrafluoroethylene (ePTFE), depending on the clinical requirements and desired outcomes.

United States market for GBR & GTR Barrier Membranes is estimated to increase from US$ million in 2025 to US$ million by 2032, at a CAGR of % from 2026 through 2032.
