Government Moving Service refers to a systematic relocation solution provided to government agencies, public institutions, and service organizations due to changes in office location. This service covers the entire process, including asset inventory, management of classified documents, dismantling and installation of office equipment, migration of information systems, and restoration to the new site. Its core focus is ensuring continuity of government affairs, asset security, and data confidentiality. Government relocation services employ structured packaging, digital work order management, and closed-loop logistics tracking technology, implementing dual-person supervision and armed escort for classified materials. The process requires coordination among multiple departments, including municipal, network, and security departments, and the development of contingency plans to minimize the impact on public services. Essentially, government relocation is a crucial support for optimizing the allocation of administrative resources, improving the efficiency of fiscal fund utilization through professional outsourcing, and promoting intensive office reform while ensuring government order. Current services are evolving towards digital command and dispatch and green relocation standards.

The global development of government moving service exhibits significant regional characteristics. The North American market is the most mature, with highly standardized project management processes and competitive bidding systems, and service providers generally possess the capability to handle classified assets and complex IT systems. The European market emphasizes compliance and environmental protection, strictly adhering to public procurement directives and generally requiring the use of green packaging materials and low-carbon transportation solutions. The Asia-Pacific region is experiencing rapid growth, particularly in China and Singapore, where service depth is synchronized with the development of smart cities and digital governments, gradually upgrading from basic logistics to comprehensive services including asset management and spatial planning. Emerging markets such as the Middle East and Latin America rely more on local cooperation with international service providers, with demand concentrated on the relocation of large ministries and embassies. The global trend is evolving from single transportation services to comprehensive solutions encompassing digital twin simulation and full asset lifecycle management.
