Abstracts

The global Graphite Nut market size is predicted to grow from US$ million in 2025 to US$ million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of %from 2026 to 2032.

The graphite nut is a special nut made of graphite material. Different from ordinary metal nuts, graphite nuts use graphite as the main material and have some unique properties and application scenarios.

Features of graphite nuts include: low coefficient of friction, good electrical and thermal conductivity, good corrosion resistance, and high temperature performance. In some high-temperature and high-pressure environments, general metal nuts will fail because they cannot withstand high temperatures and high pressures, while graphite nuts can maintain stable performance in these special environments.
