The grass line trimmer is a garden tool that uses high-speed rotating nylon wire or blades to trim lawn edges and weed small areas. It uses an electric or fuel motor to drive the cutting head, and uses flexible wires to achieve precise trimming of areas that are difficult for traditional lawn mowers to cover, such as grass, around tree roots, and corners. The device has a lightweight structure and flexible operation, and is suitable for scenes with complex terrain or high requirements for detail processing, such as home gardens, park greening, and road slopes. Modern lawn line trimmers are mostly equipped with adjustable angle cutting heads, telescopic handles, and brushless motor systems. Some high-end models support quick battery replacement and automatic line output functions, taking into account both environmental protection and operating efficiency, and are an indispensable and important equipment in garden maintenance.
