Grooved pipe fittings are mechanical connectors used to join pipes quickly and securely without welding, threading, or flanging. They feature a groove cut at the end of the pipe, into which a coupling with a gasket is fitted, ensuring a tight seal and reliable joint. These fittings are widely applied in HVAC, fire protection systems, water supply, and industrial piping because they offer ease of installation, flexibility for expansion and contraction, and convenient maintenance. Their ability to handle high pressure and provide vibration resistance makes them a preferred choice in modern piping solutions. In 2024, global grooved pipe fittings production reached approximately 325.71 million units , with an average global market price of around US$ 3.5 per unit. The raw materials of grooved pipe fittings mainly include stainless steel, aluminum, etc.
