Halal luncheon meat is a type of ready-to-eat or fast-cooking meat product produced according to Islamic dietary guidelines (Halal). The main raw material is halal-certified beef, poultry, or other permitted meats, which are minced, seasoned, packaged, and sterilized at high temperatures to form canned or brick-packaged products. The production process strictly adheres to halal slaughtering, raw material sourcing, legal additives, and compliant processing. It meets the religious compliance requirements of Muslim consumers for meat products while providing a high-protein, long-shelf-life, and convenient food option suitable for families, restaurants, and emergency situations. The average price of this product is approximately US$10,608 per ton, with a global production of approximately 152,000 tons.

The upstream sector comprises halal-certified meat sources (beef/poultry, lean meat 70%90%, fat 10%30%, spices 0.5%2%, starch/vegetable protein 2%8%), and metal can packaging (tinplate thickness 0.18%0.25 mm); the midstream sector involves halal-certified factories for filling and sterilization (core temperature 121 °C, F 6%12, packaging size 200%340 g/1%2.5 kg); and the downstream sector covers retail, catering, military supplies, and food processing. The future trend is the global expansion of halal food, especially in the Middle East, Southeast Asia, and Africa, driven by population growth and religious compliance requirements.
