The hoist chain conveyor shot blasting machine is an automated equipment that uses a hoist chain to transport workpieces. It is mainly used for cleaning, decontamination, rust removal, scale removal and strengthening of metal or other material surfaces. This equipment uses a high-speed rotating shot blaster to project high-speed projectiles onto the surface of the workpiece. The impact force of the projectiles is used to remove impurities or oxide layers on the surface of the workpiece, thereby improving the surface quality and durability of the workpiece. The hoist chain is used to directionally transport the workpiece in the shot blasting machine to ensure that the workpiece is evenly stressed during the entire cleaning process. This system is widely used in steel, casting, machinery manufacturing and other industries. It is suitable for mass production environments and can significantly improve work efficiency and processing quality.
