Ice cream pasteurizer is a device that uses pasteurization technology to perform low-temperature heat treatment on ice cream raw materials (such as milk, cream, syrup, etc.). Its core principle is to kill pathogenic bacteria (such as Salmonella, Listeria, etc.) in the raw materials through low-temperature heating at 60-85? (usually for 15-30 seconds), while retaining the nutrients and flavor of the raw materials to the maximum extent. Compared with high-temperature sterilization (such as UHT ultra-high temperature sterilization), pasteurization can reduce the loss of heat-sensitive ingredients and is suitable for ice cream production with high taste and quality requirements.

United States market for Ice Cream Batch Pasteurisers is estimated to increase from US$ million in 2024 to US$ million by 2031, at a CAGR of % from 2025 through 2031.

China market for Ice Cream Batch Pasteurisers is estimated to increase from US$ million in 2024 to US$ million by 2031, at a CAGR of % from 2025 through 2031.
