Most inkjet label printing is on narrow web presses, printing high-quality, self-adhesive prime labels. The acceptance of UV inkjet systems has grown in 2014 and 2015, as quality and reliability has improved, with higher productivity than competing toner-based systems.

In inkjet, there is a significant amount of wide-format print and cut, while there is some proofing and prototyping. There is overprinting by inkjet and mono electrophotography. Additionally there is a small proportion printed on low-cost laser toner systems, including some cut-sheet on pre-diecut stocks. Wide-format inkjet is used to print very large labels that do not fit on narrow web presses, or to print metallic or fluorescent inks. While not a very high productivity solution, a low-cost wide-format printer can provide
