According to our LPI (LP Information) latest study, the global Investment Banking market size was valued at US$ million in 2023. With growing demand in downstream market, the Investment Banking is forecast to a readjusted size of US$ million by 2030 with a CAGR of % during review period.

The research report highlights the growth potential of the global Investment Banking market. Investment Banking are expected to show stable growth in the future market. However, product differentiation, reducing costs, and supply chain optimization remain crucial for the widespread adoption of Investment Banking. Market players need to invest in research and development, forge strategic partnerships, and align their offerings with evolving consumer preferences to capitalize on the immense opportunities presented by the Investment Banking market.

The investment banking market comprises establishments primarily engaged in undergoing capital risk in the process of underwriting securities. This market excludes companies acting as agents and/or brokers between buyers and sellers of securities and commodities. These establishments primarily involve in underwriting, originating, and/or maintaining markets for issue of securities.

Investment banks across the globe are moving towards businesses requiring less regulatory capital. In this regard, major investment banks from around the world such as Barclays, Deutsche Bank and Credit Suisse have announced their plans to move from traditional underwriting business to other activities such as mergers and acquisitions advisory and fundraising. This shift is primarily due to regulatory changes that made some investment banking activities more expensive than the others. Although the regulations have restricted the range of some banks, forcing them to specialize, some investment bankers, such as Citibank and JPMorgan have continued offering a complete range of investment banking services.
