The global IT Infrastructure Lifecycle Service market size is predicted to grow from US$ 719 million in 2025 to US$ 1134 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 6.7% from 2026 to 2032.

IT Infrastructure Lifecycle Service refers to providing systematic and standardized management services for an enterprise's IT infrastructure throughout its entire lifecycle, from planning, design, implementation, operation, maintenance, to eventual decommissioning. It encompasses early-stage technical consulting and architecture design; mid-stage integration, deployment, migration, and optimization; and late-stage 24/7 monitoring, proactive maintenance, performance management, upgrades and expansions, security hardening, and compliance support, culminating in the development and execution of secure equipment decommissioning and data destruction plans. Its core objective is to ensure the reliability, security, and cost-effectiveness of infrastructure through professional, continuous, and closed-loop management, maximizing the return on technology investment and enabling enterprise IT teams to focus on core business innovation.

The costs of IT Infrastructure Lifecycle Services primarily consist of labor costs, technical tools and licensing fees, and the hardware and third-party support required for project execution. Gross profit margins vary depending on the service phase: high-value consulting, customized solutions, and fully managed services typically have higher margins (30%-50%), while standardized implementation and basic operations have lower margins due to intense competition. Economies of scale and automation capabilities are key to improving profitability.
