Kraft Machine Glazed (KMG) paper is a type of paper that is produced using the kraft pulping process and is then surface-treated with a glossy glaze on one side by passing it through highly polished heated metal cylinders during the papermaking process. The glazing process gives the paper a smooth and shiny appearance on one side while the other side remains unglazed. KMG paper is known for its high strength and excellent runnability on printing and converting machines. It exhibits good resistance to tearing, grease, and moisture, making it suitable for a variety of applications. The glazed side of the paper provides a smooth surface that enhances the printability and gives a glossy finish to printed materials.
