Lactobacillus, a digestive aid, was prepared from fresh milk after biological fermentation. Good quality stability, can be stored at room temperature. This product attaches to the intestinal mucosa, inhibits the intestinal pathogens, and promotes the growth of normal flora. This product can improve intestinal immunity, promote digestive secretion, enhance digestion and absorption function. After oral administration, sugar is decomposed in the intestine to produce lactic acid, which increases the acidity in the intestine, and promotes the transformation of pepsinogen secreted by main cells into pepsin, which can also improve pepsin activity. At the same time, the reproduction of putrid bacteria is inhibited, protein fermentation is prevented, and intestinal gas production is reduced, so as to regulate the ecological balance of intestinal microorganisms, inhibit intestinal pathogenic bacteria such as e. coli and dysentery bacillus, and prevent the storage of harmful substances in the large intestine, which is conducive to delaying the aging of the body, promoting gastrointestinal peristaltic and gastric juice secretion.
