Lisdexamfetamine active pharmaceutical ingredient (API) refers to the active compound used in the production of lisdexamfetamine formulations such as capsules, tablets, and oral solutions. It is a prodrug synthesized from dextroamphetamine and the amino acid lysine, classified as a central nervous system stimulant. Once administered orally in finished dosage forms, it is metabolized into dextroamphetamine to exert its therapeutic effects, primarily in the treatment of attention deficit hyperactivity disorder and moderate to severe binge eating disorder. As a critical upstream component, the synthesis process, quality control, and reliable supply of the API have a direct impact on the efficacy, safety, and market availability of downstream pharmaceutical products. In 2024, the global production of lisdexamfetamine API reached 69.2 tons, with an average price of 3,150 USD per kilogram.
