Abstracts

The global Long-Term Contract Catering market size is predicted to grow from US$ 31793 million in 2025 to US$ 46473 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 5.6% from 2026 to 2032.

The gross profit margin of major companies in the industry is between 6%–12%.

Long-Term Contract Catering refers to outsourced food service operations provided under multi-year contracts to organizations such as corporations, schools, hospitals, factories, and public institutions. These services typically cover meal planning, food preparation, on-site operation, and compliance management, emphasizing cost control, service stability, and food safety.

The industrial chain of Long-Term Contract Catering includes upstream food ingredients, beverages, kitchen equipment, and logistics services. The midstream focuses on menu design, kitchen operation, workforce management, and quality control. Downstream applications involve corporate campuses, educational institutions, healthcare facilities, industrial parks, and public-sector organizations, supported by contract management, digital ordering systems, and on-site service teams.

The long-term contract catering market is driven by organizations seeking cost efficiency, operational stability, and food safety compliance. Outsourcing catering services allows institutions to focus on core activities while benefiting from standardized operations and scale advantages. Demand is supported by corporate campus expansion, healthcare service growth, and institutional dining needs. Digital ordering systems and nutrition management solutions are increasingly integrated into catering operations. Overall, the market is expected to grow steadily as more organizations adopt long-term outsourcing models for food services.
