Managed Testing Services (MTS) refer to a comprehensive outsourcing approach for software testing and quality assurance activities. In an MTS model, an external service provider takes on the responsibility of planning, managing, and executing testing processes on behalf of the client organization. The goal is to ensure that software applications meet quality standards, adhere to requirements, and function as intended.

The trend towards 'Shift-Left' testing involves integrating testing activities earlier in the software development life cycle (SDLC). MTS providers are focusing on early collaboration between development and testing teams to identify and address issues at the early stages of the development process.
