According to this study, the global Mental Disorder Treatment market size will reach US$ 83000 million by 2031.

A mental disorder is also called as mental illness or a psychiatric disorder. Mental disorders are generally defined according to how an individual behave, feels, perceives and thinks, and mental disorder occurs due to damage or problems associated with functions of brain. There are various types of mental disorders such as depression, bipolar disorder, schizophrenia and other psychoses, dementia, and developmental disorders including autism.

These disorders can be treated with the help of various medications such as anti-depressants, antianxiety drugs and can also be treated with self-help therapies such as psychotherapy, brain stimulation treatments, and others.

The global pharmaceutical market is 1475 billion USD in 2022, growing at a CAGR of 5% during the next six years. The pharmaceutical market includes chemical drugs and biological drugs. For biologics is expected to 381 billion USD in 2022. In comparison, the chemical drug market is estimated to increase from 1005 billion in 2018 to 1094 billion U.S. dollars in 2022. The pharmaceutical market factors such as increasing demand for healthcare, technological advancements, and the rising prevalence of chronic diseases, increase in funding from private & government organizations for development of pharmaceutical manufacturing segments and rise in R&D activities for drugs. However, the industry also faces challenges such as stringent regulations, high costs of research and development, and patent expirations. Companies need to continuously innovate and adapt to these challenges to stay competitive in the market and ensure their products reach patients in need. Additionally, the COVID-19 pandemic
