Mining Pool Services are centralized or decentralized platforms provided by operators that aggregate the computational power (hashrate) of numerous individual miners into a single logical unit. Its core function is to deconstruct high-difficulty blockchain mining targets into smaller, manageable 'shares' distributed via protocols like Stratum V2. This service effectively mitigates the income volatility (variance) inherent in solo mining through a 'revenue smoothing' mechanism. Beyond task coordination and hashrate validation, the pool acts as a financial clearinghouse, distributing block subsidies and transaction fees according to specific payout schemes such as FPPS or PPLNS.
