On the opposite side of the hammering side, there is a nail puller like a crowbar. The center of gravity is more in line with the striking side than that of a hammer, which is a similar tool.

Nail hammers are used in a wide range of situations. They can be used in two ways with a single hammer: driving in nails and pulling out nails that have been missed. As a nailing tool, it is used in tasks involving a lot of wood and plastic. For example, it is frequently used in 'house construction' and 'DIY' situations.
