The global Naringin Extract market size is predicted to grow from US$ 263 million in 2025 to US$ 379 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 5.4% from 2026 to 2032.

Naringin extract is a natural plant extract obtained from the peel of citrus fruits such as grapefruit or grapefruit through processes such as water extraction, alcohol extraction, or composite solvent extraction. It is mainly rich in flavonoids, polyphenols, volatile components, and small amounts of organic acids. Representative active ingredients include naringin and naringin. This extract has certain antioxidant, antibacterial, seasoning, and functional activity characteristics, and is commonly used in food and nutritional supplements, cosmetics and personal care products, as well as some functional formulas, as a natural source functional raw material or plant active ingredient. In 2025, global Naringin Extract production reached approximately 12.43 K MT, with an average global market price of around US$ 21,679 per MT.

The overall market for pomelo peel extract shows a stable and upward structural growth, with the core logic being the continuous increase in the penetration of natural and plant-based raw materials in food and nutritional supplements, functional beverages, and personal care formulas. With the antioxidant and formula selling points brought by flavonoids such as naringin, pomelo peel extract is easy to combine with consumer demands such as weight management, cardiovascular health, anti sugar and antioxidant properties, and oral freshness. At the same time, it can also be coupled with citrus supply chains, reducing raw material costs and improving sustainable narratives through high-value fruit juice processing by-products; However, there are also two obvious constraints in the industry. Firstly, different sources and processes lead to significant differences in the content of active ingredients and impurity spectra. Customers are increasingly emphasizing standardized content, inter batch consistency, solvent residue, and pesticide residue heavy metal control, driving the market from rough extraction to standardized and refined layering. Secondly, the boundary between compliance and claims will affect the incremental space, especially for products with functional claims that require more rigorous evidence and label management. Therefore, suppliers who are more likely to emerge usually have stable raw material traceability, standardized processes and testing systems, as well as document support capabilities for regulations in different regions; The future opportunities will focus more on increasing the proportion of standardized specifications with high content, complex solutions with other natural active ingredients, and customized indicators for top brands such as low bitterness, low odor, and better dissolution and dispersion performance, in order to obtain premium and more stable orders in homogeneous pricing competition.
