Natural cat supplements refer to nutritional supplement products for cats that use natural ingredients as the main raw materials. These products are designed to provide cats with nutrients that may be lacking in daily food or that are beneficial to specific physiological functions of cats, thereby helping to maintain the health of cats. The processing of natural cat supplements usually tries to maintain the natural characteristics of the raw materials, using gentle extraction and processing methods such as cold pressing and low-temperature drying to retain the activity of nutrients. The processing of traditional supplements may involve more chemical treatments and high-temperature processing steps, which may cause the loss or denaturation of some nutrients.
