The Non-public Security Service industry consists of companies who provide private security guards and patrol vehicles, as well as additional ancillary services such as alarm systems, cyber security, background screening, investigation, risk analysis and security consultancy services.

The non-public security services market refers to the security and protection services provided by private security companies, generally distinguished from the public safety services of government law enforcement agencies. The driving factors for this market can include the following:

Increased crime rates: When crime rates increase in an area, the need for security from individuals and businesses also increases. This has prompted private security companies to offer more services to meet security needs.

Terrorist Threat: The global threat of terrorism has made businesses and individuals more concerned about security. Private security companies can provide counter-terrorism consulting, training and physical security services to address these threats.

Property Protection: Businesses and wealthy individuals often need to protect property, assets and critical information. Private security companies can provide customized security solutions to ensure the safety of these properties.

Event Security: Large events, international conferences and sporting competitions often require special security measures. Private security companies can provide event security services, including staff planning, security personnel, surveillance systems and crisis management.

Private Bodyguard and VIP Protection: High-risk individuals, celebrities and high-ranking officials often require the services of private bodyguards to ensure their personal safety.

High-Tech Security: As technology continues to advance, the security services provided by private security companies are also constantly being upgraded. This includes surveillance systems, biometrics, cybersecurity and drone patrols, among others.
