Non-Woven Needle Felt Filter Cloth refers to a type of filtration material produced by mechanically entangling fibers through a needle punching process to form a dense, porous fabric with controlled permeability. It is designed to capture solid particles from gases or liquids while maintaining stable flow characteristics, offering high dust holding capacity, durability, and resistance to abrasion and chemical exposure. This material is widely used in industrial filtration applications such as dust collection, liquid filtration, and environmental control systems, where reliable separation performance and long service life are required. The unit price of non-Woven Needle Felt Filter Cloth is typically $2 to $10 per square meter, with industry gross margins generally between 20% and 40%.

The upstream supply chain of Non-Woven Needle Felt Filter Cloth includes raw material suppliers providing synthetic fibers such as polyester, polypropylene, aramid, and other specialty fibers, along with additives and finishing chemicals that enhance filtration performance and durability. It also involves manufacturers of fiber processing and needle punching equipment. The midstream consists of nonwoven fabric producers that carry out fiber blending, web formation, needle punching, and finishing treatments to produce filter cloth tailored to specific applications. Downstream, the products are supplied to filtration system manufacturers, industrial end users, and engineering companies across sectors such as power generation, cement, chemicals, food processing, and environmental protection, where they are used in baghouse filters, liquid filtration systems, and emission control applications, supported by replacement, maintenance, and technical service solutions.
