Abstracts

The global Office Decommissioning Service market size is predicted to grow from US$ 179 million in 2025 to US$ 258 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 5.5% from 2026 to 2032.

Office Decommissioning Service is a systematic, end-to-end professional project management service executed when a company relocates, consolidates, or closes its existing office space. Its core objective is to safely, compliantly, and efficiently complete the space handover and maximize asset recovery value. This service covers all stages, from initial planning, asset inventory and disposal, secure data erasure of IT equipment, furniture and equipment relocation or resale, to internal dismantling and deep cleaning and restoration. It must strictly adhere to environmental regulations in handling waste electronic equipment and hazardous materials. Professional service providers use project management methods to coordinate logistics, IT security, environmental, and construction contractors to ensure that the handover is completed within the agreed timeframe and budget. Simultaneously, they assist companies in fulfilling their data security and environmental responsibilities, ultimately helping clients mitigate legal risks, reduce relocation costs, and realize the residual value of remaining assets, completing the final closed loop of corporate real estate lifecycle management.

The global office decommissioning service market is highly correlated with regional economic activity. North America and Europe are the most mature markets, with demand primarily driven by mergers and acquisitions, office space optimization, and the promotion of hybrid work models. Service providers focus on data security compliance and asset value recovery. The Asia-Pacific market is experiencing rapid growth, particularly in China and Southeast Asia, driven by strong demand from corporate expansion, relocation, and lease expiration, with services emphasizing efficiency and cost control. The Middle East is seeing projects concentrated in emerging landmark buildings due to business center development and diversification reforms. Latin America and Africa are still in their early stages, primarily driven by multinational corporation branches. Overall, mature markets focus on green decommissioning and technology applications, while emerging markets are dominated by basic decommissioning services. The industry continues to evolve in line with global supply chain layouts and corporate real estate strategies.
