The global Offsite Document Storage Service market size is predicted to grow from US$ 4039 million in 2025 to US$ 5874 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 5.6% from 2026 to 2032.

Offsite document storage service is a professional information management solution that means enterprises entrust inactive paper documents, archives, records or backup digital storage media to professional, high-security third-party facilities located outside the main office location for long-term storage and management.

The growth of the offsite document storage service market is primarily driven by businesses' rigid demand for business continuity and disaster recovery, increasingly stringent regulatory compliance requirements, the management challenges posed by explosive data growth, and the inherent drive to reduce local storage costs and improve operational efficiency. Faced with the risk of permanent local data loss due to natural disasters, cyberattacks, fires, or man-made accidents, businesses must store critical business documents, archives, and data backups in specialized off-site facilities that are physically isolated and equipped with high-level security and environmental controls to ensure rapid resumption of operations after emergencies. Furthermore, with the surge in the number of paper and digital archives held by businesses, local storage not only consumes expensive office space but also leads to management chaos and difficulty locating archives. Offsite storage services, by providing secure, compliant, and scalable professional hosting solutions, help businesses effectively mitigate risks, meet regulatory compliance, save costs, and achieve centralized and efficient archive management.
