Olefin fiber wallpaper is primarily made from synthetic resins. The synthetic resins used include polyethylene and polypropylene, which produce minimal smoke when incinerated and do not emit toxic gases. In addition, olefin fiber wallpaper features a scratch-resistant surface that is easy to clean, and it offers ease of design. However, due to its thinner nature compared to other wallpapers, substrate irregularities may become noticeable when applied as-is. Therefore, it may be necessary to prepare the substrate in advance.

Olefin fiber wallpapers are particularly practical for households with children and pets since they can be easily cleaned with water when soiled. They are also available in various designs, including woodgrain for a warm feel and stone grain for a calming ambiance. Prices may be slightly higher compared to other wallpaper options.
