The global One Component Adhesive market size is predicted to grow from US$ 22602 million in 2025 to US$ 37328 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 7.5% from 2026 to 2032.

In 2025, global One Component Adhesive production reached approximately 2.56 million tons , with an average global market price of around US$9k per ton.

One-component adhesives are pre-formulated adhesive systems that require no mixing and cure upon exposure to environmental triggers such as moisture, heat, UV light, or oxygen. They are typically based on chemistries such as polyurethane, silicone, epoxy, acrylic, or modified polymers (e.g., MS polymers), and cure via mechanisms like moisture curing, thermal curing, or UV curing. These adhesives offer ease of use, process consistency, compatibility with automated production, and improved safety, making them widely used in construction, automotive, electronics, appliances, and industrial assembly applications.

The upstream of one-component adhesives includes base resins (polyurethane prepolymers, silicones, epoxy resins), solvents, fillers (calcium carbonate, silica), plasticizers, curing agents, and functional additives, supplied by companies such as BASF, Dow, Wacker Chemie, Arkema, Evonik, and 3M. The midstream consists of adhesive manufacturers like Henkel, Sika, H.B. Fuller, 3M, and Bostik. Downstream applications include automotive manufacturing (e.g., Toyota, Volkswagen), electronics (e.g., Apple supply chain, Foxconn), construction, home appliances (Haier, Midea), packaging, and industrial assembly sectors.

One component adhesives are extensively used in the automotive sector for various applications such as structural bonding, sealants, and exterior body panel adhesion. As the automotive industry continues to grow, the demand for one component adhesives is also expected to increase. The construction industry is another major driver for the one component adhesive market. These adhesives are used for various applications in construction, such as bonding of different materials, sealing, and filling gaps. With the increasing construction activities worldwide, the demand for one component adhesives is on the rise. The one component adhesive market is expected to witness steady growth in the coming years, driven by various industries' increasing needs for efficient and reliable bonding solutions. Adhesive manufacturers' focus on innovation, sustainability, and industry-specific formulations will further contribute to market expansion.
