Abstracts

According to this study, the global One-stop Contract Logistics Service market size will reach US$ 8984 million by 2031.

One-stop contract logistics service refers to a comprehensive supply chain solution where a single logistics provider manages all aspects of a client's logistics needs under a long-term agreement. This includes services such as warehousing, transportation, inventory management, order fulfillment, packaging, customs clearance, and sometimes even after-sales support—offering an integrated and streamlined approach to logistics operations.

By outsourcing to a one-stop provider, businesses gain operational efficiency, cost savings, and greater flexibility in scaling their supply chains. These service providers often leverage digital tools like warehouse management systems (WMS), transport management systems (TMS), and real-time tracking to optimize performance and transparency. This model is especially valuable for manufacturers, retailers, and e-commerce companies seeking to simplify vendor management and focus on core business.

United States market for One-stop Contract Logistics Service is estimated to increase from US$ million in 2024 to US$ million by 2031, at a CAGR of % from 2025 through 2031.

China market for One-stop Contract Logistics Service is estimated to increase from US$ million in 2024 to US$ million by 2031, at a CAGR of % from 2025 through 2031.
