Abstracts

The global Online Comic Reading Platform market size is predicted to grow from US$ 2961 million in 2025 to US$ 5378 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 9.0% from 2026 to 2032.

An online comic reading platform refers to a platform that provides users with online reading, subscription, or purchase services for comic content through digital channels such as the web, apps, and mini-programs. Its core capabilities include content digitization and distribution, chapter updates, reader experience (panel layout/page turning/night mode, etc.), copyright and author management, paid subscriptions and advertising monetization, community interaction and data recommendations, covering various formats such as comics, webtoons, and light novel adaptations.

Webtoons, traditional page comics, and interactive comic dramas coexist, with themes expanding into niche areas such as reality, workplace, and suspense, catering to the diverse preferences of Generation Z and adult users. The platform lowers the barrier to creation through creator incentive programs, IP co-creation communities, and AI-assisted tools, increasing the proportion of UGC and PUGC content while supporting independent comic artists and building an open creative ecosystem. Content supply is globalized, with Japanese and Korean comics, original Chinese works, and independent works from Europe and America circulating cross-border, and multilingual translation and localized operations expanding audience reach.

The Asia-Pacific region, leveraging its mature comic culture and mobile internet infrastructure, maintains rapid growth, with Chinese and Korean platforms accelerating their overseas expansion, exporting original content and operational models. The European and American markets focus on independent comics and IP adaptations, with platforms expanding their user base through localized content introduction and community operations; emerging markets such as Southeast Asia and the Middle East are becoming new growth engines. The rise of cross-border content cooperation and copyright alliances is promoting the standardized development of the global comic market and reducing regional expansion barriers.
