The global Peach Kernel Oil market size is predicted to grow from US$ 11.74 million in 2025 to US$ 15.12 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 2.3% from 2026 to 2032.

In 2024, global sales of Peach Kernel Oil reached approximately 3 k tons, with an average market price of about USD 4000 per ton, an annual production capacity of roughly 4 k tons, and an industry-average gross margin of approximately 30%.

Peach Kernel Oil is a vegetable oil obtained from the kernels (seeds) of peaches, typically produced through cold pressing or mechanical pressing followed by appropriate refining. It is rich in unsaturated fatty acids, mainly oleic and linoleic acid, and contains minor amounts of tocopherols, phytosterols and other lipophilic bioactives. In the market it is broadly divided into cosmetic grade (for skin-care formulations, massage oils and aromatherapy base oils) and edible grade (for blending in specialty cooking oils or as a nutritional ingredient), subject to local regulatory approvals. With its light texture, good spreadability and low irritancy, peach kernel oil is widely used in products aimed at sensitive skin and baby care, and can also serve as a niche edible oil or supplement component.

Upstream, peach kernel oil depends on the fruit-growing and peach-processing industry, which supplies peach pits and kernels that are cleaned, separated, dried and then subjected to pressing or extraction, refining and filling. Some premium producers integrate dedicated orchards, organic certification and small-batch cold-pressing lines. The midstream consists of vegetable-oil refiners, cosmetic-ingredient suppliers and nutritional-ingredient companies that grade, standardize and brand the oil. Downstream, consumption is concentrated in skin-care and personal-care products (creams, body oils, baby-care formulations), massage/SPA and aromatherapy base oils, as well as specialty edible oils and dietary supplements. Among these, cosmetics and personal care are the main growth drivers, while edible applications are more niche and region-specific, tied to health-oriented cooking, baking and flavoring segments, together forming a relatively steady “beauty plus wellness” demand pattern.

The market for Peach Kernel Oil is a niche but steadily developing segment within the broader vegetable and specialty oil industry, positioned at the crossover of cosmetics, personal care, nutraceuticals and small-volume edible oils. On the demand side, it benefits from the long-term shift toward “natural” and plant-based ingredients, where brands look for gentle, hypoallergenic base oils for sensitive-skin and baby-care formulations, as well as for massage and aromatherapy blends. Supply is closely tied to peach cultivation and fruit-processing by-products (pits and kernels), so regions with strong stone-fruit industries tend to dominate production, and many players operate as integrated processors that handle kernel cracking, oil pressing and refining in-house. The competitive landscape is fragmented, with a few specialized European and Asian refiners supplying high-purity cosmetic and organic grades, while numerous smaller producers and private-label fillers serve local or online niche markets. Overall, Peach Kernel Oil is viewed more as a high-value functional ingredient than a volume commodity, with growth driven by clean-label cosmetics, premium wellness products and differentiated “story-telling” oils rather than by large-scale food applications.
