The global Perlite market size is predicted to grow from US$ 523 million in 2025 to US$ 696 million in 2031; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 4.9% from 2025 to 2031.

The impact of the latest U.S. tariff measures and the corresponding policy responses from countries worldwide on market competitiveness, regional economic performance, and supply chain configurations will be comprehensively evaluated in this report.

Perlite is an amorphous volcanic glass. Due to having relatively high water content, it expands from 2 to 20 times of its initial volume in high temperatures. So that it becomes light with open and closed air spaces. These features set the perlite as a raw material used in many important industrial areas.

In terms of value, the expanded perlite segment is projected to grow at a higher CAGR during the forecast period. This growth can be attributed to factors such as introducing high strength to concrete with less water content and easy workability. Expanded perlite finds applications in several industries including agriculture & horticulture, construction, industrial, and food & beverages.
