Abstracts

The global Peroxybenzoic Acid market size is predicted to grow from US$ 242 million in 2025 to US$ 366 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 6.1% from 2026 to 2032.

Peroxybenzoic acid is an organic peracid formed by the oxidation of benzoic acid, widely used as a selective oxidizing agent in organic synthesis, particularly for epoxidation of alkenes, Baeyer-Villiger oxidation of ketones, and fine chemical or pharmaceutical intermediate production; industrially, it is typically produced in situ or via controlled reaction of benzoic acid (or benzoyl chloride) with hydrogen peroxide in the presence of acid catalysts due to its instability and safety concerns in storage and transport. The supply chain begins upstream with petrochemical-derived benzene (from crude oil refining) converted to benzoic acid through oxidation processes, alongside hydrogen peroxide produced via the anthraquinone process; midstream involves specialized chemical manufacturers conducting peroxidation reactions under controlled conditions, often avoiding bulk storage and instead supplying stabilized solutions or on-demand synthesis systems; downstream, peroxybenzoic acid is consumed primarily by pharmaceutical companies, agrochemical producers, and specialty chemical manufacturers, with distribution typically handled as small-batch, high-value specialty chemicals due to its reactive and hazardous nature rather than large-scale commodity logistics. In 2025, global Peroxybenzoic Acid output was about 150,000 tons with 190,000 tons of capacity, average prices of USD 1,500-3,500 per ton, and gross margins around 24%.
