To address the urgent needs of individuals and families for personalized, high-end, immediate, and deeply privacy-protected health management beyond standard medical services, private health services have emerged. With the upgrading of global health consumption in the 21st century, the maturity of digital health technologies, and the expansion of the high-net-worth population, this service sector has evolved from the traditional family doctor model into a highly professional and systematic health protection system. Currently, private health services have developed into comprehensive, membership-based health solutions encompassing dedicated general practitioners, personalized health management, high-end in-depth physical examinations, international second opinion coordination, 24/7 telemedicine consultation, emergency medical assistance, and full-process medical escort. It is widely used by corporate executives, high-net-worth families, expatriates, and individuals with an exceptional pursuit of health quality, aiming to provide proactive, continuous, private, and comprehensive health support throughout the entire life cycle, thereby significantly improving the health level, medical experience, quality of life, and sense of security of service recipients.
