Abstracts

The global Pet Care Liability Insurance market size is predicted to grow from US$ 1296 million in 2025 to US$ 2750 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 11.4% from 2026 to 2032.

Pet care liability insurance is a type of insurance designed for pet care service providers to protect them against liability issues arising from negligence, errors, or accidents during the provision of pet care and grooming services. This type of insurance typically covers liability for pet injury, loss, death, or property damage. Through this insurance, pet care service providers can mitigate financial losses caused by accidents, while also increasing consumer trust and ensuring the sustainable development of the pet care industry.

With the increasing number of pets and their growing importance in people's lives, the pet care market is expanding rapidly. Pet owners are increasingly prioritizing their pets' health and welfare, providing a vast market space for pet care service providers. However, certain risks still exist in the pet care industry, including pet injury, loss, or other accidents, making pet care liability insurance an increasingly important protection tool. With the development of the pet industry, especially the increasing demand for services such as pet medical care, boarding, and grooming, pet care liability insurance is expected to continue growing in the coming years. Furthermore, as pet owners focus more on service quality and safety, pet care liability insurance will become part of the industry standard, bringing more business opportunities and risk management solutions to service providers.
