This report mainly focuses on pet medical agency market. Pet medical agencies refer to institutions that provide diagnosis and treatment services for pets, including pet hospitals, pet clinics and other institutions that provide pet diagnosis and treatment services.

Pet medical service is different from other pet consumer products/services. The use of most drugs or vaccines generally needs to be carried out by people with professional veterinary knowledge. Veterinary advice will directly affect consumers' choices of various medical products/services and even non-medical products. , so pet diagnosis and treatment is usually the closest link with end consumers. This makes the competitive landscape of the pet diagnosis and treatment industry generally fragmented, with low industry concentration.
