The global Polyether TPU Film market size is predicted to grow from US$ million in 2025 to US$ million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of %from 2026 to 2032.

Polyether TPU film refers to a type of film made from a thermoplastic polyurethane (TPU) polymer that is primarily composed of polyether-based segments. TPU is a versatile material known for its excellent combination of properties, including elasticity, transparency, chemical resistance, and durability. It's widely used in various applications where a flexible and robust material is required.

Polyether TPU films are particularly known for their high water and moisture resistance, making them suitable for applications such as waterproof clothing, outdoor gear, medical products, inflatable structures, and more. The polyether-based segments in the TPU structure contribute to these films' ability to withstand exposure to water, chemicals, and environmental factors without degrading or losing their performance.
