Abstracts

The global Port Facility Leasing market size is predicted to grow from US$ 15062 million in 2025 to US$ 25938 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 8.5% from 2026 to 2032.

Port Facility Leasing refers to a model in which port authorities or asset owners grant usage rights of terminals, berths, yards, warehouses, and related port infrastructure to third-party operators through leasing or concession agreements for commercial operations. This model aims to improve asset utilization efficiency, operational performance, and overall logistics service levels by involving professional operators, and it is widely adopted in major global hub ports.

At the same time, the model is evolving toward long-term, large-scale, and specialized operations driven by global trade restructuring and increasing competition among ports. More ports are involving global terminal operators to improve throughput capacity, operational efficiency, and digitalization levels while optimizing port asset allocation structures. On the other hand, the rapid development of smart and green ports is reshaping the industry landscape. Automated terminals, intelligent scheduling systems, and data-driven operations are becoming mainstream, while the adoption of low-carbon energy and sustainable infrastructure upgrades is driving port leasing models toward sustainability, making them a key component of global supply chain infrastructure.

LPI (LP Information)' newest research report, the “Port Facility Leasing Industry Forecast” looks at past sales and reviews total world Port Facility Leasing sales in 2025, providing a comprehensive analysis by region and market sector of projected Port Facility Leasing sales for 2026 through 2032.
