The global Potassium Peroxymonosulfate market size is predicted to grow from US$ 112 million in 2025 to US$ 154 million in 2031; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 5.5% from 2025 to 2031.

The impact of the latest U.S. tariff measures and the corresponding policy responses from countries worldwide on market competitiveness, regional economic performance, and supply chain configurations will be comprehensively evaluated in this report.

Potassium peroxymonosulfate, also known as MPS or potassium monopersulfate, is widely used as an oxidizing agent. Potassium peroxymonosulfate is present as a component of a triple salt with the molecular formula of $2\text{KHSO}_5 \cdot \text{KHSO}_4 \cdot \text{K}_2\text{SO}_4$ and CAS number 70693-62-8.

The Potassium Peroxymonosulfate (commonly known as MPS or KMPS) market is driven primarily by its widespread application as an oxidizing agent in industries such as water treatment, pharmaceuticals, and cleaning and disinfectant products. Its strong oxidative properties, stability in solid form, and versatility make it a key ingredient in formulations for pool and spa sanitizers, veterinary disinfectants, and non-chlorine shock treatments. Regulatory preference for safer and more environmentally friendly chemicals over chlorine-based alternatives also supports market adoption, especially in hygiene-sensitive industries.

Despite these advantages, the market faces certain challenges, including regulatory restrictions on handling strong oxidizers and fluctuating raw material costs that can impact pricing and availability. Additionally, competition from alternative disinfection technologies and chemical substitutes can influence demand in some segments.

However, ongoing innovations in specialty chemicals and growing awareness of water hygiene and biosafety are likely to sustain interest in Potassium Peroxymonosulfate across developed and emerging markets.
