The research report highlights the growth potential of the global Processed Bentonite market. With recovery from influence of COVID-19 and the Russia-Ukraine War, Processed Bentonite are expected to show stable growth in the future market. However, product differentiation, reducing costs, and supply chain optimization remain crucial for the widespread adoption of Processed Bentonite. Market players need to invest in research and development, forge strategic partnerships, and align their offerings with evolving consumer preferences to capitalize on the immense opportunities presented by the Processed Bentonite market.

Bentonite is the common name for naturally occurring clay that contains the active montmorillonite mineral. The special properties of montmorillonite that enable commercial applications include the sub-micron platelet structure, very high surface area (?800 m<sup>2</sup>/g), and inherent negative charge in the platelet that is counter balanced by exchangeable cations. Bentonites are typically classified as either sodium (swelling) or calcium (non-swelling) based on their interlayer exchangeable cations and ability to swell in water. Bentonites with sodium (Na+) ions as the predominant exchangeable cation exhibit a high swelling capability in water, whereas bentonites with calcium (Ca++) ions as the majority exchangeable cation exhibit much lower swelling ability. Bentonite is known as the “Mineral of 1,000 Uses.” Based on our proven ability to selectively mine for specific applications and modify the surface of the mineral to deliver performance, bentonite clay has major commercial applications in foundry green sand binders, building waterproofing, cat litter, geosynthetic clay liners for environmental uses, iron ore pelletizing, drilling muds, edible oil clarification, animal feeds, and wine/juice clarification. Specialty applications of bentonite clay include asphalt emulsions, catalysts, cosmetics, paints and pharmaceuticals.
