RAG as a service refers to cloud-based or on-premise solutions that combine retrieval and generation techniques. These solutions allow businesses to leverage structured and unstructured data efficiently, ensuring AI-generated responses are precise and trustworthy. Unlike traditional AI models that rely solely on pre-trained data, RAG enhances contextual understanding by retrieving external information in real-time.RAG as a Service means that RAG is a managed service offered by a provider. In this scenario, the provider's platform usually handles all of the heavy lifting at both intake and user query time, from data pre-processing, chunking, and embedding to text and vector database management, prompt management, and contacting the LLM to generate a response. The best RAG as a Service providers offer enterprise-grade security and data privacy for access control, low latency, and high service uptime.

United States market for RAG as a Service is estimated to increase from US$ million in 2024 to US$ million by 2031, at a CAGR of % from 2025 through 2031.
