The wire and cable rewinding service refers to rewinding the original coiled or unorganized wires and cables to the target reel or drum through professional mechanical equipment and process technology. This service is often used to solve the following problems: large coils or irregularly packaged cables are easier to store and transport after rewinding, reducing waste and damage. Customers may require customized packaging with specific size, weight, and reel structure due to installation site, equipment requirements or logistics links. Through rewinding, small batches and accurate measurement packaging are achieved, which is convenient for subsequent on-site installation and quality control.
