Steel Threadbar Micropiles are micropiles made of solid steel bars with external threads along the entire length. Steel Threadbar Micropiles are installed by drilling a borehole, inserting the steel bar into the hole, and then injecting grout to fill the annular space between the bar and the surrounding soil or rock. The threaded design allows for efficient load transfer between the micropile and the surrounding ground.

Steel Threadbar Micropiles are commonly used in deep foundation applications where high axial and lateral loads need to be supported. They are suitable for various soil and rock conditions and can be used in foundation rehabilitation, ground improvement, and seismic retrofitting projects.

The global Rebar Micropiles market size is projected to grow from US$ million in 2024 to US$ million in 2030; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of %from 2024 to 2030.
